Introduction

We know the real costs of attending a festival extend far beyond the ticket, and recognise that financial inequality shapes who is able to show up, take part, and contribute to the collective spirit of the weekend. That's why Twominds Festival is committed to reducing barriers and ensuring our community reflects a wide range of experiences, voices and backgrounds.

For 2026, a limited allocation of reduced-cost tickets is available for people who can establish – through an application process – that they have limited resources to afford a standard-cost ticket. This programme is designed for those experiencing genuine, ongoing financial constraints, and is one way we honour our commitment to equitable access. We trust applicants to engage honestly, and we approach every application with care and respect.

How much are low-income tickets?

Low-income tickets are offered at a 75% discount from standard priced tickets. This reduction is designed to ease financial pressure and create a more equitable pathway for people to join us. Prices are as follows:

$79 - Weekend Pass (13–15 March 2026)

$39 - Friday Day Pass (13 March 2026)

$49 - Saturday Day Pass (14 March 2026)

Who can apply?

Our priority is to support people experiencing sustained financial pressure, including those receiving income support, managing long-term health or disability-related costs, or supporting dependents on limited income. We review every application individually, and take a holistic view of each person's circumstances.

The more information you provide on your circumstances, the better. To assess eligibility fairly, we ask applicants to provide accurate supporting documentation. This is to ensure that reduced-cost tickets end up in the hands of those who need them the most.

Supporting evidence

March 2026, or earlier if the allocated reduced-cost tickets are exhausted.

Outcome notification

All applicants will be notified of their application outcome by email at the end of each month as assessments are completed. Only complete applications with correct documentation will be considered. All successful applicants will be notified by 1 March 2026.
